Dear Laura,

I have no objection to this application on archaeology grounds, on the assumption that the level of previous disturbance has removed archaeological features or deposits and therefore development in this location would not harm such features.

The site is within the Kirknewton Conservation Area, and in an area of historical significance associated with East Kirknewton Farm, therefore development must respect the character and significance of the historic built environment, including their settings. Development should seek to have a positive, or at least neutral impact, on character and significance.

Kind regards,

Chris
